

Washington Journal

VOLUME XXXIX. NO. 12.

MONDAY.

KANSAS CITY, JUNE 22, 1906.

MONDAY.

PRICE TWO CENTS.

TOWARD SWOPE PARK

SIGNS HAVE BEEN PLACED ALONG THREE SEPARATE ROUTES.

A COMMITTEE BUSY YESTERDAY

SPEAKERS' STANDS LOCATED AND OTHER DETAILS ARRANGED.

Many Went to the Park on Wheels, in Vehicles and by Train, Impatient to Inspect the City's Official-General Committee Meeting Today.

Committee J. J. Wolf, Chief Hale, W. Scott, and W. D. Dorschner put in a busy day yesterday preparing for the Swope park jubilee. They visited the park, located the speakers' stands and put up a large number of signs directing the people to all springs in the park and to various other points of interest. Numerous signs indicate where the celebration will take place Thursday and no one will have any excuse for getting lost in Kansas City's immense park.

In addition to all this, hundreds of signs were put up along three of the best routes from the city to the park. The best route is that by way of Indiana and Cleveland avenues and the committee put up signs from Forest avenue east on Lincoln avenue to Indiana avenue and thence to the park. Signs were also put up along the Prospect route, beginning at Lincoln and Prospect avenues and going south on Prospect to the park. The third route marked out is by way of Troost avenue and any stranger can easily find the way by observing the signs along any of these three routes.

A large number of people yesterday visited the Swope park property and spent the afternoon viewing its many charming features. The great mountain-like hills were climbed over in search for wild flowers and peculiar shaped rocks to be found there, and the meadow and pasture land was thoroughly searched for the elusive and much prized four-leaf clover. So much has been said and written of the great beauty of this valuable tract of property recently deeded to Kansas City by Mr. Thomas Swope, that everyone is anxious to see for themselves this great work of nature.

It is not strange, then, that so many drove and walked in that direction yesterday afternoon, despite the heat and oppressive atmosphere. Many of these visitors were staying in the city and were going to the park to see the Swope park property. Chief Hale had promised to protect a young man, who had been told that the mystery of the finding of a well-cared for retirement fund of nature was solved correctly, for the man had been told that the man who drove there for that purpose.

Yesterday being Sunday, the finance committee did not meet. The finance committee will meet tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock to discuss the general fund for the grand demonstration to be held next Thursday in Colonel Swope's honor. This occasion promises to be one of the most important in the history of Kansas City. The finance committee will also discuss the plan for the Swope park jubilee, which will be held on Thursday, June 28, at 10 o'clock. The plan for the jubilee is to have a large number of speakers, who will give addresses on various subjects. The speakers' stands have been located and the details of the jubilee are being arranged.

General subscriptions from citizens and other interested parties are being received. The finance committee will receive reports from the various committees and will also discuss the plan for the jubilee. The finance committee will also discuss the plan for the jubilee, which will be held on Thursday, June 28, at 10 o'clock. The plan for the jubilee is to have a large number of speakers, who will give addresses on various subjects. The speakers' stands have been located and the details of the jubilee are being arranged.

HENRY MILLER'S FALL.
It was not the first, but it had an untimely effect.

Henry Miller, a character well known at the police station because of his many visits there in connection with his various escapades, fell down the stairs of the Harrigan hotel, a cheap lodging house at 617 Walnut street, and is the sudden end of the Harrigan hotel. Miller, who is a half-breed, was removed to Central police station, where his injuries were attended to by the police surgeon. Miller, who is a half-breed, was removed to Central police station, where his injuries were attended to by the police surgeon.

SENATOR CANNON IN TOWN.

One of the St. Louis Senators Passed Through Yesterday.

A United States Senator Frank J. Cannon, who was in St. Louis yesterday, was at the Coates House yesterday morning for several hours. They left on the Santa Fe at 1 o'clock for their Western home. Senator Cannon is one of the leading spirits in the silver bill and took part in the St. Louis convention and remained in St. Louis after the departure of his colleagues to make some arrangements about the silver bill. He is now in St. Louis, where he is devoting his time and energies to the advancement of the cause.

Little Known of Joseph Hennessey.

Among the letters found on the body of Joseph Hennessey, who was killed in the Swope park jubilee, was one from a woman named Mrs. W. D. Dorschner, who is a resident of Kansas City. The letter was addressed to Hennessey and was dated June 21, 1906. The letter was found in Hennessey's pocket and was one of the many letters found on his body. The letter was found in Hennessey's pocket and was one of the many letters found on his body.

Mrs. Atkins in an Asylum.
Mrs. Mary Atkins, an insane woman living at 514 Cherry street, was taken by the police to the county asylum yesterday morning. She had been ill for several weeks and had been in the care of the police for some time. The police had been unable to find a suitable home for her and had therefore taken her to the county asylum. She is now in the care of the police and is being treated for her insanity.

Patrolman Seizes Almost Recovered.
Patrolman Sam Seales, who early yesterday morning was struck by a bolt of lightning that jumped from overhead wires, was last night reported almost recovered and is now in the hospital.

HAS NO AMBITION.

W. C. WHITNEY NOT A PRESIDENTIAL ASPIRANT.

SEES CERTAIN DISASTER AHEAD

HE THINKS DEMOCRACY WILL BE SWAMPED THIS YEAR.

That If the Chicago Convention Declares for Free Silver—Statement of His Position in the Coming Campaign.

New York, June 21.—William C. Whitney today made public a statement in which he declared that he had no ambition to be president of the United States. Whitney, who is a prominent Republican, said that he was not a presidential aspirant and that he was not interested in the presidency. He said that he was not a presidential aspirant and that he was not interested in the presidency.

Whitney said that he was not a presidential aspirant and that he was not interested in the presidency. He said that he was not a presidential aspirant and that he was not interested in the presidency. He said that he was not a presidential aspirant and that he was not interested in the presidency. He said that he was not a presidential aspirant and that he was not interested in the presidency.

EXCURSIONS POPULAR.

Many Persons Took Advantage of Cheap Rates and Came to Kansas City Yesterday.

Four popular rate excursions were run into the city yesterday, and over each line there was a large number of pleasure seekers brought in. The Alton brought two coaches from points this side of Louisiana and with the many who came to the city for the first time. The Missouri Pacific brought excursionists from Sedalia and intermediate points and had a liberal patronage that the city has never before seen. The Union Pacific brought excursionists from St. Louis and intermediate points and had a liberal patronage that the city has never before seen.

TEXANS FAVOR TELLER.

Free Silver Democrats Not Averse to Indorsing the Colorado Bolter at Their Convention.

Austin, Tex., June 21.—Some of the silver delegates to the state Democratic convention at Austin, Tex., yesterday expressed their opinion that they would not indorse the Colorado bolter at their convention. They said that they would not indorse the Colorado bolter at their convention. They said that they would not indorse the Colorado bolter at their convention.

A LYING IN ALABAMA.

Colored Man Taken From Jail and Hanged—His Body Hidden.

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 21.—A special to the Times from Birmingham, Ala., says: On Friday night last, a 35-year-old daughter of Owen Pickett, a prominent farmer living near Bartlesville, Ala., was kidnapped by Leon Orr, a negro farm laborer, who was later found in the woods where the brute had assaulted her and left her in an unconscious condition, fatally injured. Orr was captured near Bartlesville, Ala., and is now in the custody of the police.

GETTING READY FOR WAR.

Spain Preparing to Resist American Demands—Curious Over the Republican Platform.

London, June 21.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Madrid says: "The platform adopted in St. Louis causes great uneasiness in Spain and it is feared a conflict with the United States is not far off. The government has hastened to buy 12,000 tons of munitions at Genoa, whose price a few days ago was thought to be about $100,000. The government has also ordered the mobilization of its army and is preparing to resist American demands. The government has also ordered the mobilization of its army and is preparing to resist American demands.

BUTCHERS ENGAGE IN A RIOT.

Trouble Over a Competitive Skinning Match Results in Many Being Injured, One Fatally.

Council Bluffs, Ia., June 21.—The butchers of Omaha, Kansas City and Sioux City held a competitive skinning match here today, at which thousands of persons attended. The affair culminated in a riot. The entire police force was required to quell the affair. The riot was caused by the butchers' refusal to accept the results of the match. The riot was caused by the butchers' refusal to accept the results of the match.

DIG STRIKE IN HUNGARY.

Thousands of Laborers Quit Work and Will Sue the Government for Relief.

Budapest, June 21.—There are 100,000 factory hands now on a strike. They are quiet and peaceful but apparently determined to obtain their demands. It is estimated that 10,000 workmen in the province of Pester have resolved to go to the railway when the czar returns to St. Petersburg and stop the train and throw themselves on their knees to induce the emperor to receive a memorial of their grievances.

FORAKER ON SILVER.

THE OHIO SENATOR DISCUSSES THE PROHIBITION PLATFORM.

HE CRITICIZES THE BOLTERS.

DECLARES THEY HAD NO EXCUSE FOR THEIR HASTY ACTION.

The Republican Party Took No New Stand in St. Louis, but Simply Made a More Explicit Declaration Than Heretofore.

Cincinnati, O., June 21.—In view of Senator Foraker's relation to the making of the platform at St. Louis, and his relations with Senator Teller four years ago in a similar capacity, his utterance on the subject of gold and silver last night in his justification speech, becomes of great interest. He said:

"I want to take advantage of this opportunity to say a word about the effort now being made to make it appear that the Republican party declared in its platform for something new at St. Louis. That is not true. The declaration of the Republican party as to the financial plank dates from the time of the Chicago convention. It was then that the Republican party declared its policy on the subject of gold and silver. It was then that the Republican party declared its policy on the subject of gold and silver.

SILVER MONUMENTALISM.

"It cannot be denied that the feeling among our people that the gold standard of the United States is wrong, and that the silver standard is right, is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread.

"Whether these differences can be reconciled it is impossible to anticipate. The feeling among our people that the gold standard of the United States is wrong, and that the silver standard is right, is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread.

"The feeling among our people that the gold standard of the United States is wrong, and that the silver standard is right, is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread.

"The feeling among our people that the gold standard of the United States is wrong, and that the silver standard is right, is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread.

"The feeling among our people that the gold standard of the United States is wrong, and that the silver standard is right, is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread.

"The feeling among our people that the gold standard of the United States is wrong, and that the silver standard is right, is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread.

"The feeling among our people that the gold standard of the United States is wrong, and that the silver standard is right, is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread.

"The feeling among our people that the gold standard of the United States is wrong, and that the silver standard is right, is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread.

"The feeling among our people that the gold standard of the United States is wrong, and that the silver standard is right, is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread.

"The feeling among our people that the gold standard of the United States is wrong, and that the silver standard is right, is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread.

"The feeling among our people that the gold standard of the United States is wrong, and that the silver standard is right, is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread.

"The feeling among our people that the gold standard of the United States is wrong, and that the silver standard is right, is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread.

"The feeling among our people that the gold standard of the United States is wrong, and that the silver standard is right, is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread.

"The feeling among our people that the gold standard of the United States is wrong, and that the silver standard is right, is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread.

"The feeling among our people that the gold standard of the United States is wrong, and that the silver standard is right, is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread.

"The feeling among our people that the gold standard of the United States is wrong, and that the silver standard is right, is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread.

"The feeling among our people that the gold standard of the United States is wrong, and that the silver standard is right, is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread.

"The feeling among our people that the gold standard of the United States is wrong, and that the silver standard is right, is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread.

"The feeling among our people that the gold standard of the United States is wrong, and that the silver standard is right, is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread.

"The feeling among our people that the gold standard of the United States is wrong, and that the silver standard is right, is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread.

"The feeling among our people that the gold standard of the United States is wrong, and that the silver standard is right, is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread.

"The feeling among our people that the gold standard of the United States is wrong, and that the silver standard is right, is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread. It is a feeling which is growing more and more widespread.

MURDER AT WICHITA

TERRIBLE RESULTS OF A MAD HUSBAND'S JEALOUSY.

O. E. HART SHOOT HIS WIFE.

THEN WITH THE SAME WEAPON ENDS HIS OWN CAREER.

Link Pitts, the Cause of the Tragedy, Makes His Escape, but the Police Are After Him—The Sequel of Three Sensations.

Wichita, Kan., June 21.—(Special.) A terrible double tragedy occurred in this city today, the sequel of a sensational episode which occurred in this city within the past year. O. E. Hart, a farmer of this county, shot and killed his wife, Ida Hart, at a boarding house, on North Main street, where he had followed her from their home in Sunnyside, finding her in company with a man named Link Pitts. After killing his wife, Hart blew out his own brains with a revolver. The circumstances leading up to today's tragedy are as follows: On the morning of May 2, Link Pitts, who then conducted a chow house at Sunnyside, was found lying in his bed, apparently senseless, from the effects of chloroform. His wife was also under the influence of a drug and in a critical condition. The day previous Pitts had been in Wichita, where he cashed several hundred dollars worth of checks for the neighbors, who were furnishing milk for the chow house, and this money was missing. The house was turned up as though burglarized and everybody believed Pitts' story to the effect that he had been robbed. In a few days, detectives discovered that Pitts had bought the chloroform, and he confessed and restored the money. On June 1, Pitts returned home, and informed his wife, exactly, that he would have to flee the country, as Hart had found him with his wife. Pitts fled, but the neighbors did not believe the report he started, as the Hart family stood very high in the community. It was soon ascertained, as Hart brought suit for divorce, alleging adultery, and naming Pitts as co-respondent. The wife filed a cross bill, but before the date for the trial a reconciliation was effected, and the suits withdrawn. Today it came to light that Pitts had kept up a correspondence with Hart continuously since that time.

It seems that Pitts arranged with Mrs. Hart to meet in this city Saturday evening, and sent her a telegram with the signature of one of her relatives, saying that he was coming to Wichita, as her friend, Miss Edith Mueller, was lying at the point of death and wanted to see her. Mrs. Hart left for Wichita on the morning train Saturday, and when she arrived, she found her husband's corpse and he had been shot. She fled, but the neighbors did not believe the report he started, as the Hart family stood very high in the community. It was soon ascertained, as Hart brought suit for divorce, alleging adultery, and naming Pitts as co-respondent. The wife filed a cross bill, but before the date for the trial a reconciliation was effected, and the suits withdrawn. Today it came to light that Pitts had kept up a correspondence with Hart continuously since that time.

The signature of Mrs. Pitts, an extraordinary agreement to be believed, by those familiar with her handwriting, to be genuine. It was signed by the husband, who was found lying in his bed, apparently senseless, from the effects of chloroform. His wife was also under the influence of a drug and in a critical condition. The day previous Pitts had been in Wichita, where he cashed several hundred dollars worth of checks for the neighbors, who were furnishing milk for the chow house, and this money was missing. The house was turned up as though burglarized and everybody believed Pitts' story to the effect that he had been robbed. In a few days, detectives discovered that Pitts had bought the chloroform, and he confessed and restored the money. On June 1, Pitts returned home, and informed his wife, exactly, that he would have to flee the country, as Hart had found him with his wife. Pitts fled, but the neighbors did not believe the report he started, as the Hart family stood very high in the community. It was soon ascertained, as Hart brought suit for divorce, alleging adultery, and naming Pitts as co-respondent. The wife filed a cross bill, but before the date for the trial a reconciliation was effected, and the suits withdrawn. Today it came to light that Pitts had kept up a correspondence with Hart continuously since that time.

The signature of Mrs. Pitts, an extraordinary agreement to be believed, by those familiar with her handwriting, to be genuine. It was signed by the husband, who was found lying in his bed, apparently senseless, from the effects of chloroform. His wife was also under the influence of a drug and in a critical condition. The day previous Pitts had been in Wichita, where he cashed several hundred dollars worth of checks for the neighbors, who were furnishing milk for the chow house, and this money was missing. The house was turned up as though burglarized and everybody believed Pitts' story to the effect that he had been robbed. In a few days, detectives discovered that Pitts had bought the chloroform, and he confessed and restored the money. On June 1, Pitts returned home, and informed his wife, exactly, that he would have to flee the country, as Hart had found him with his wife. Pitts fled, but the neighbors did not believe the report he started, as the Hart family stood very high in the community. It was soon ascertained, as Hart brought suit for divorce, alleging adultery, and naming Pitts as co-respondent. The wife filed a cross bill, but before the date for the trial a reconciliation was effected, and the suits withdrawn. Today it came to light that Pitts had kept up a correspondence with Hart continuously since that time.

The signature of Mrs. Pitts, an extraordinary agreement to be believed, by those familiar with her handwriting, to be genuine. It was signed by the husband, who was found lying in his bed, apparently senseless, from the effects of chloroform. His wife was also under the influence of a drug and in a critical condition. The day previous Pitts had been in Wichita, where he cashed several hundred dollars worth of checks for the neighbors, who were furnishing milk for the chow house, and this money was missing. The house was turned up as though burglarized and everybody believed Pitts' story to the effect that he had been robbed. In a few days, detectives discovered that Pitts had bought the chloroform, and he confessed and restored the money. On June 1, Pitts returned home, and informed his wife, exactly, that he would have to flee the country, as Hart had found him with his wife. Pitts fled, but the neighbors did not believe the report he started, as the Hart family stood very high in the community. It was soon ascertained, as Hart brought suit for divorce, alleging adultery, and naming Pitts as co-respondent. The wife filed a cross bill, but before the date for the trial a reconciliation was effected, and the suits withdrawn. Today it came to light that Pitts had kept up a correspondence with Hart continuously since that time.

The signature of Mrs. Pitts, an extraordinary agreement to be believed, by those familiar with her handwriting, to be genuine. It was signed by the husband, who was found lying in his bed, apparently senseless, from the effects of chloroform. His wife was also under the influence of a drug and in a critical condition. The day previous Pitts had been in Wichita, where he cashed several hundred dollars worth of checks for the neighbors, who were furnishing milk for the chow house, and this money was missing. The house was turned up as though burglarized and everybody believed Pitts' story to the effect that he had been robbed. In a few days, detectives discovered that Pitts had bought the chloroform, and he confessed and restored the money. On June 1, Pitts returned home, and informed his wife, exactly, that he would have to flee the country, as Hart had found him with his wife. Pitts fled, but the neighbors did not believe the report he started, as the Hart family stood very high in the community. It was soon ascertained, as Hart brought suit for divorce, alleging adultery, and naming Pitts as co-respondent. The wife filed a cross bill, but before the date for the trial a reconciliation was effected, and the suits withdrawn. Today it came to light that Pitts had kept up a correspondence with Hart continuously since that time.

The signature of Mrs. Pitts, an extraordinary agreement to be believed, by those familiar with her handwriting, to be genuine. It was signed by the husband, who was found lying in his bed, apparently senseless, from the effects of chloroform. His wife was also under the influence of a drug and in a critical condition. The day previous Pitts had been in Wichita, where he cashed several hundred dollars worth of checks for the neighbors, who were furnishing milk for the chow house, and this money was missing. The house was turned up as though burglarized and everybody believed Pitts' story to the effect that he had been robbed. In a few days, detectives discovered that Pitts had bought the chloroform, and he confessed and restored the money. On June 1, Pitts returned home, and informed his wife, exactly, that he would have to flee the country, as Hart had found him with his wife. Pitts fled, but the neighbors did not believe the report he started, as the Hart family stood very high in the community. It was soon ascertained, as Hart brought suit for divorce, alleging adultery, and naming Pitts as co-respondent. The wife filed a cross bill, but before the date for the trial a reconciliation was effected, and the suits withdrawn. Today it came to light that Pitts had kept up a correspondence with Hart continuously since that time.

The signature of Mrs. Pitts, an extraordinary agreement to be believed, by those familiar with her handwriting, to be genuine. It was signed by the husband, who was found lying in his bed, apparently senseless, from the effects of chloroform. His wife was also under the influence of a drug and in a critical condition. The day previous Pitts had been in Wichita, where he cashed several hundred dollars worth of checks for the neighbors, who were furnishing milk for the chow house, and this money was missing. The house was turned up as though burglarized and everybody believed Pitts' story to the effect that he had been robbed. In a few days, detectives discovered that Pitts had bought the chloroform, and he confessed and restored the money. On June 1, Pitts returned home, and informed his wife, exactly, that he would have to flee the country, as Hart had found him with his wife. Pitts fled, but the neighbors did not believe the report he started, as the Hart family stood very high in the community. It was soon ascertained, as Hart brought suit for divorce, alleging adultery, and naming Pitts as co-respondent. The wife filed a cross bill, but before the date for the trial a reconciliation was effected, and the suits withdrawn. Today it came to light that Pitts had kept up a correspondence with Hart continuously since that time.

The signature of Mrs. Pitts, an extraordinary agreement to be believed, by those familiar with her handwriting, to be genuine. It was signed by the husband, who was found lying in his bed, apparently senseless, from the effects of chloroform. His wife was also under the influence of a drug and in a critical condition. The day previous Pitts had been in Wichita, where he cashed several hundred dollars worth of checks for the neighbors, who were furnishing milk for the chow house, and this money was missing. The house was turned up as though burglarized and everybody believed Pitts' story to the effect that he had been robbed. In a few days, detectives discovered that Pitts had bought the chloroform, and he confessed and restored the money. On June 1, Pitts returned home, and informed his wife, exactly, that he would have to flee the country, as Hart had found him with his wife. Pitts fled, but the neighbors did not believe the report he started, as the Hart family stood very high in the community. It was soon ascertained, as Hart brought suit for divorce, alleging adultery, and naming Pitts as co-respondent. The wife filed a cross bill, but before the date for the trial a reconciliation was effected, and the suits withdrawn. Today it came to light that Pitts had kept up a correspondence with Hart continuously since that time.

The signature of Mrs. Pitts, an extraordinary agreement to be believed, by those familiar with her handwriting, to be genuine. It was signed by the husband, who was found lying in his bed, apparently senseless, from the effects of chloroform. His wife was also under the influence of a drug and in a critical condition. The day previous Pitts had been in Wichita, where he cashed several hundred dollars worth of checks for the neighbors, who were furnishing milk for the chow house, and this money was missing. The house was turned up as though burglarized and everybody believed Pitts' story to the effect that he had been robbed. In a few days, detectives discovered that Pitts had bought the chloroform, and he confessed and restored the money. On June 1, Pitts returned home, and informed his wife, exactly, that he would have to flee the country, as Hart had found him with his wife. Pitts fled, but the neighbors did not believe the report he started, as the Hart family stood very high in the community. It was soon ascertained, as Hart brought suit for divorce, alleging adultery, and naming Pitts as co-respondent. The wife filed a cross bill, but before the date for the trial a reconciliation was effected, and the suits withdrawn. Today it came to light that Pitts had kept up a correspondence with Hart continuously since that time.

The signature of Mrs. Pitts, an extraordinary agreement to be believed, by those familiar with her handwriting, to be genuine. It was signed by the husband, who was found lying in his bed, apparently senseless, from the effects of chloroform. His wife was also under the influence of a drug and in a critical condition. The day previous Pitts had been in Wichita, where he cashed several hundred dollars worth of checks for the neighbors, who were furnishing milk for the chow house, and this money was missing. The house was turned up as though burglarized and everybody believed Pitts' story to the effect that he had been robbed. In a few days, detectives discovered that Pitts had bought the chloroform, and he confessed and restored the money. On June 1, Pitts returned home, and informed his wife, exactly, that he would have to flee the country, as Hart had found him with his wife. Pitts fled, but the neighbors did not believe the report he started, as the Hart family stood very high in the community. It was soon ascertained, as Hart brought suit for divorce, alleging adultery, and naming Pitts as co-respondent. The wife filed a cross bill, but before the date for the trial a reconciliation was effected, and the suits withdrawn. Today it came to light that Pitts had kept up a correspondence with Hart continuously since that time.

The signature of Mrs. Pitts, an extraordinary agreement to be believed, by those familiar with her handwriting, to be genuine. It was signed by the husband, who was found lying in his bed, apparently senseless, from the effects of chloroform. His wife was also under the influence of a drug and in a critical condition. The day previous Pitts had been in Wichita, where he cashed several hundred dollars worth of checks for the neighbors, who were furnishing milk for the chow house, and this money was missing. The house was turned up as though burglarized and everybody believed Pitts' story to the effect that he had been robbed. In a few days, detectives discovered that Pitts had bought the chloroform, and he confessed and restored the money. On June 1, Pitts returned home, and informed his wife, exactly, that he would have to flee the country, as Hart had found him with his wife. Pitts fled, but the neighbors did not believe the report he started, as the Hart family stood very high in the community. It was soon ascertained, as Hart brought suit for divorce, alleging adultery, and naming Pitts as co-respondent. The wife filed a cross bill, but before the date for the trial a reconciliation was effected, and the suits withdrawn. Today it came to light that Pitts had kept up a correspondence with Hart continuously since that time.

The signature of Mrs. Pitts, an extraordinary agreement to be believed, by those familiar with her handwriting, to be genuine. It was signed by the husband, who was found lying in his bed, apparently senseless, from the effects of chloroform. His wife was also under the influence of a drug and in a critical condition. The day previous Pitts had been in Wichita, where he cashed several hundred dollars worth of checks for the neighbors, who were furnishing milk for the chow house, and this money was missing. The house was turned up as though burglarized and everybody believed Pitts' story to the effect that he had been robbed. In a few days, detectives discovered that Pitts had bought the chloroform, and he confessed and restored the money. On June 1, Pitts returned home, and informed his wife, exactly, that he would have to flee the country, as Hart had found him with his wife. Pitts fled, but the neighbors did not believe the report he started, as the Hart family stood very high in the community. It was soon ascertained, as Hart brought suit for divorce, alleging adultery, and naming Pitts as co-respondent. The wife filed a cross bill, but before the date for the trial a reconciliation was effected, and the suits withdrawn. Today it came to light that Pitts had kept up a correspondence with Hart continuously since that time.

The signature of Mrs. Pitts, an extraordinary agreement to be believed, by those familiar with her handwriting, to be genuine. It was signed by the husband, who was found lying in his bed, apparently senseless, from the effects of chloroform. His wife was also under the influence of a drug and in a critical condition. The day previous Pitts had been in Wichita, where he cashed several hundred dollars worth of checks for the neighbors, who were furnishing milk for the chow house, and this money was missing. The house was turned up as though burglarized and everybody believed Pitts' story to the effect that he had been robbed. In a few days, detectives discovered that Pitts had bought the chloroform, and he confessed and restored the money. On June 1, Pitts returned home, and informed his wife, exactly, that he would have to flee the country, as Hart had found him with his wife. Pitts fled, but the neighbors did not believe the report he started, as the Hart family stood very high in the community. It was soon ascertained, as Hart brought suit for divorce, alleging adultery, and naming Pitts as co-respondent. The wife filed a cross bill, but before the date for the trial a reconciliation was effected, and the suits withdrawn. Today it came to light that Pitts had kept up a correspondence with Hart continuously since that time.

The signature of Mrs. Pitts, an extraordinary agreement to be believed, by those familiar with her handwriting, to be genuine. It was signed by the husband, who was found lying in his bed, apparently senseless, from the effects of chloroform. His wife was also under the influence of a drug and in a critical condition. The day previous Pitts had been in Wichita, where he cashed several hundred dollars worth of checks for the neighbors, who were furnishing milk for the chow house, and this money was missing. The house was turned up as though burglarized and everybody believed Pitts' story to the effect that he had been robbed. In a few days, detectives discovered that Pitts had bought the chloroform, and he confessed and restored the money. On June 1, Pitts returned home, and informed his wife, exactly, that he would have to flee the country, as Hart had found him with his wife. Pitts fled, but the neighbors did not believe the report he started, as the Hart family stood very high in the community. It was soon ascertained, as Hart brought suit for divorce, alleging adultery, and naming Pitts as co-respondent. The wife filed a cross bill, but before the date for the trial a reconciliation was effected, and the suits withdrawn. Today it came to light that Pitts had kept up a correspondence with Hart continuously since that time.

The signature of Mrs. Pitts, an extraordinary agreement to be believed, by those familiar with her handwriting, to be genuine. It was signed by the husband, who was found lying in his bed, apparently senseless, from the effects of chloroform. His wife was also under the influence of a drug and in a critical condition. The day previous Pitts had been in Wichita, where he cashed several hundred dollars worth of checks for the neighbors, who were furnishing milk for the chow house, and this money was missing. The house was turned up as though burglarized and everybody believed Pitts' story to the effect that he had been robbed. In a few days, detectives discovered that Pitts had bought the chloroform, and he confessed and restored the money. On June 1, Pitts returned home, and informed his wife, exactly, that he would have to flee the country, as Hart had found him with his wife. Pitts fled, but the neighbors did not believe the report he started, as the Hart family stood very high in the community. It was soon ascertained, as Hart brought suit for divorce, alleging adultery, and naming Pitts as co-respondent. The wife filed a cross bill, but before the date for the trial a reconciliation was effected, and the suits withdrawn. Today it came to light that Pitts had kept up a correspondence with Hart continuously since that time.

The signature of Mrs. Pitts, an extraordinary agreement to be believed, by those familiar with her handwriting, to be genuine. It was signed by the husband, who was found lying in his bed, apparently senseless, from the effects of chloroform. His wife was also under the influence of a drug and in a critical condition. The day previous Pitts had been in Wichita, where he cashed several hundred dollars worth of checks for the neighbors, who were furnishing milk for the chow house, and this money was missing. The house was turned up as though burglarized and everybody believed Pitts' story to the effect that he had been robbed. In a few days, detectives discovered that Pitts had bought the chloroform, and he confessed and restored the money. On June 1, Pitts returned home, and informed his wife, exactly, that he would have to flee the country, as Hart had found him with his wife. Pitts fled, but the neighbors did not believe the report he started, as the Hart family stood very high in the community. It was soon ascertained, as Hart brought suit for divorce, alleging adultery, and naming Pitts as co-respondent. The wife filed a cross bill, but before the date for the trial a reconciliation was effected, and the suits withdrawn. Today it came to light that Pitts had kept up a correspondence with Hart continuously since that time.

The signature of Mrs. Pitts, an extraordinary agreement to be believed, by those familiar with her handwriting